Penny the Penguin: Her New Friend

Morris has suggested that we can find an analogy for the trinity in the psychological condition known as multiple personality disorder: just as a single human being can have multiple personalities, so too a single God can exist in three persons though, of course, in the case of God this is a cognitive virtue, not a defect. Morris, Others-Trenton Merricks for example-have suggested that we can conceive of the divine persons on analogy with the separate spheres of consciousness that result from commissurotomy. Merricks' Commissurotomy is a procedure, sometimes used to treat epilepsy, that involves cutting the bundle of nerves, the corpus callosum, by which the two hemispheres of the brain communicate.
